ALDI hiring more than 13,000 employees for nationwide expansion

September 5, 2024

ALDI will hire more than 13,000 store and warehouse associates as it prepares for the upcoming holiday season and continues adding new stores across the U.S. At a time when unemployment has increased, ALDI is growing its team of more than 49,000 employees and raising its national average hourly pay.

“Whether it’s our in-store team filling shelves with fresh produce, warehouse staff managing logistics, or drivers delivering our trending ALDI Finds, our employees fuel the quicker, easier and more affordable shopping experience our shoppers know and love,” said Atty McGrath, president of ALDI. “Our ability to attract and retain talent has always been key to our success, and we look forward to helping our new team members grow in their careers.”

As a Certified Great Place to Work and one of Forbes’ America’s Best Large Employers, ALDI said it offers competitive compensation, robust benefits and opportunities for advancement

“Since I started working at ALDI 16 years ago as a store associate, I’ve taken on new roles including store manager and purchasing assistant. Today, I work as a warehouse operations supervisor,” said Danielle, a Wisconsin-based ALDI employee. “What I love most about working for ALDI is that I’ve found a truly meaningful career. I’ve had opportunities to grow personally and professionally, without ever losing the part of my job I love the most, greeting my team and our shoppers with smiles in the aisles.”
